

4 CHARLOTTE ROWE

From large-scale country landscapes to town courtyards, Charlotte

Rowe's gardens are revered for their clean, simple sensibility and 'exemplary bone-structure offset by soft, generous planting and careful detail'. This year the Kensington-based studio is in high demand in the country, with projects in Surrey, Yorkshire, and Herefordshire. Charlotte will also continue to work locally, bringing her expertise to London spaces in need of love. charlotterowe.com

7 DANNY CLARKE

First and foremost a 'friend of the earth', Danny Clarke is a tour de force of the gardening world, making it his mission to address both climate change and community integration. Between co-hosting programs like Love Your Garden and Filthy Garden SOS he can be found working on community gardens and bespoke projects. Grow2Know, his non-profit, aims to inspire and empower young gardeners. theblackgardener.co.uk

8 DAN PEARSON

Master rewilder Dan Pearson has made an art form out of constructing lavish sustainable wildernesses, underpinned by an ecologically balanced, naturalistic approach. His Mona Lisa is arguably National Trust Sissinghurst, where he has been the garden advisor since 2014 – but commissions elsewhere this year include a 400-acre rewilding project, 64-hectare winery in Tuscany, and luxury hotel in the Berkshires. ## 9 HARRIS BUGG STUDIO

Keen sensitivity to historical context and a regenerative thinking runs in the DNA of Harris Bugg Studio, an ethos realised to new heights at its recently completed Kitchen Garden at RHS Bridgewater inspired by Victorian field maps and old canal routes. The studio, led by duo Charlotte Harris and Hugo Bugg, is equally busy with private projects across the country this year, and talks at Charleston Festival and Chelsea Barracks Spring Fair. ## 10 JINNY BLOM

For over 20 years clients have been turning to Jinny Blom to realise complex visions – her immersive methodology, delving into history, geography and culture of landscapes has made her a master of out-of-the-ordinary spaces. Over the years this has included an arid sculptural garden in Kenya; blazing autumnal forestscape in Scotland; and free-roaming 'anti-garden'. This year sees the release of her second book, African Anthology. jinnyblom.com

5 CHRIS BEARDSHAW

An RHS Chelsea Flower Show veteran, Chris Beardshaw's talent for blending architectural and exterior elements has established him as one of the most highly regarded names in the business. If you want to get a space in his schedule, you'll have to squeeze in between commissions for the RNLI, a parterre garden at Pitmedden, and project at Trinity College, Oxford, which is in the works for next spring. ## 6 CLEVE WEST

A committed vegan, Cleve West's work is shaped by an environmental focus and pioneering 'veganic' approach. That means keeping human intervention to a minimum, mitigating habitat loss, and enhancing flourishing wildlife. Among the six-time RHS Gold medal winner's projects you'll find public spaces, leafy islands, restored 'refuge' plots and an animal sanctuary in British Columbia – all rooted in eco-conscious design.
