

Design duo Charlotte Harris and Hugo Bugg specialise in sustainable design

Harris Bugg Studio

harrisbugg.com

With studios in Exeter, London and Skye, and a team of 12, Charlotte Harris and Hugo Bugg specialise in sustainable spaces that bridge the gap between traditional and contemporary. Equally at home designing for listed estates as for newbuilds, they are prominent at Chelsea this year, working with charity Horatio's Garden on a design that will be relocated to the Princess Royal Spinal Cord Injuries Centre in Sheffield. 'It's an accessible, therapeutic space – we're so glad it is going to have a life after Chelsea,' says Charlotte.

ROBERT MYERS ASSOCIATES

robertmyers-associates.co.uk

With studios in Worcestershire and Cambridge, Robert Myers' practice takes on a wide mix of projects. These range from private gardens to urban design and management plans for historic landscapes.

JANE BROCKBANK

janebrockbank.com

Working from her base in London, Jane Brockbank is well known for her nature-led gardens in urban settings. Designing intuitively, she creates leafy havens that bring a feel of the country to the city.

ARABELLA LENNOX-BOYD

arabellalennoxboyd.com

One of the most celebrated designers in Britain, Arabella Lennox-Boyd is a grande dame of garden design, having been in the business for more than 50 years. Her own garden at Gresgarth Hall in Lancashire is an impressive showcase for everything she does.

JINNY BLOM

jinnymbloom.com

Running a multi-disciplinary practice of architects, artists and designers enables Jinny Blom to deliver a portfolio of highly accomplished gardens. She is working on projects in the UK, the US and France, and is to launch an outdoor paint range this autumn. Her latest book, What Makes a Garden, is due out in October.

URQUHART & HUNT

urquharthunt.com

Lulu Urquhart and Adam Hunt are the very dynamic duo whose Rewilding Britain Landscape (complete with a beaver dam) was named Best in Show at Chelsea in 2022. Their romantic, naturalistic gardens exemplify the great creative possibilities of ecological restoration.

MATTHEW CHILDS

matthewchildsdesign.co.uk

One of a new generation of designers, Matthew Childs devises beautifully built gardens made to be used. In 2022, he won the Society of Garden Designers Judges' Award for a pool garden in Surrey.

NEW ENTRY

TANIA COMPTON

taniacompton.co.uk

Building long-term relationships with clients, the former garden editor of House & Garden produces intensively planted gardens with the eye of an artist and the pragmatism of a woman who knows how to minimise maintenance with a well-judged meadow.

KIM WILKIE

kimwilkie.com

Among other projects, landscape architect Kim Wilkie is currently developing designs for the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, as well as for Wakehurst Place in Sussex, and Dulwich Picture Gallery, SE21. Kim's work is very much guided by his belief in the importance of regenerative farming and its application to garden settings.

BUNNY GUINNESS

bunnyguinness.com

In addition to running her own YouTube channel, landscape architect Bunny Guinness works on a variety of projects – ranging from large-scale commercial schemes to small, private gardens. Each is well tailored to the client's requirements and designed to exploit the potential of the space.

ANDY STURGEON

andysturgeon.com

Known for combining cool, contemporary styling with traditional materials, Andy Sturgeon recently worked on the Battersea Power Station roof gardens and one of Hong Kong's largest private gardens.